flatland3d is currently a leader in the PEV glove market, and positioned to become a leader in the PEV centered safety market. Although flatland3d has experienced viral success within the PEV industry, we have one major road block that restricts our growth. Our top selling product, the Pro e-skate Glove, has a manufacturing lead time that is longer than the time it takes for us to sell out of the previous order. This results in many months out of the year having customers visit our site to purchase a product that is out of stock. Our problem is simple...we are asset rich, and cash poor.

Our target market is all personal electric vehicle riders. Estimated at a size of 328k PEV units sold as of 4th quarter 2019 and continuing to grow. Riders love our products and we have a cult like following, however, due to our inventory issues we have only penetrated 3% of that target market.

In parallel to placing a larger purchase order of gloves to capture more of the our target market, we plan on developing a new line of e-skate gloves and PEV related safety equipment with flatland3d as the sole owner to yield higher margins than Knox partnered products. Other products in the safety gear lineup would be tailored to PEV speeds and riding conditions, targeting simplicity, ease of use, style and function. Current “competitors” are really only gear designed for other uses.

The opportunity flatland3d presents to you the investor, is a 10% revenue share of our annual sales based on a $249k Reg CF investment. This investment would allow us to place larger purchase orders of gloves from our manufacture which would eliminate our inventory issue, as well as allow us to continue developing our new and expanded product line.

With capital investment, our goal would be to sell 10k pairs of gloves in 2020/2021 ($600k revenue). Capturing a larger portion of our target market. Our current cost of customer acquisition is $0 and we sell out of every shipment of gloves within months just through word of mouth and social media updates.

Crowdfunding is a relatively new and evolving method of using the Internet to raise capital to support a wide range of ideas and ventures. An entity or individual raising funds through crowdfunding typically seeks small individual contributions from a large number of people. Individuals interested in the crowdfunding campaign – members of the "crowd" – may share information about the project, cause, idea or business with each other and use the information to decide whether to fund the campaign based on the collective "wisdom of the crowd." To learn more about crowdfunding, please visit our Educational Material and the SEC's website.
