Even in this difficult economic climate, we are debt free with income from operations, something many of our prospective customers consider before making a multi-year decision about who will provide their phone services." Mr. Martin continued, "With the recent addition of new IP communications solutions for business, specifically Packet8 Virtual Trunking and Hosted Key System services, we can now save any business of any size significant telecommunications costs by leveraging their existing high speed Internet connection. This enables us to tap into a much broader segment of the business market from the smallest home office to larger, more established enterprises."
