Dear Mr. Schneider:

We have reviewed your response letter dated February 27, 2008 and have the following additional comments. Where indicated, we think you should revise your future filings in response to these comments. If you disagree, we will consider your explanation as to why our comments are not applicable or a revision is unnecessary. Please be as detailed as necessary. We look forward to working with you in these respects and welcome any questions you may have about any aspects of our review.

Form 10-K for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2007

MD&A
Results of Operations, page 42

1. We note your response to our prior comment 2. You state that operating income is a significant performance measure that you have a responsibility to address. We do not object to a discussion and analysis of operating income, but we do not believe your disclosure of operating expenses, as presented only the context of operating income, provides investors with an adequate understanding of your results of operations. You state that your financial reporting system is focused on revenue and operating income metrics from the income statement and that your accounting/reporting process is not structured to report individual elements of costs of revenues. However, it would appear that a detailed understanding of significant components of costs of revenues would be a prerequisite to a proper discussion and analysis of significant factors affecting reported results of operations. To the extent you believe your financial reporting system constrains your ability to obtain and analyze operating expense information, please tell us how you were able to comply with the requirements of Item 303 of Regulation S-K to describe significant components of expenses necessary in order to understand results of operations. In the alternative, please revise future filings to supplement your discussion and analysis of results of operations with a discussion of operating expenses, as appropriate.

Form 10-Q for the quarterly period ended September 30, 2007
Note 5 – Inventories, page 10

2. We note your response to our prior comment 8, a portion of which was provided on a confidential basis. Based on the chronology of events occurring before the issuance of your financial statements on May 29, 2007, it appears you were aware by that date that significant additional costs related to the redesign of TWS II would be incurred beyond the $3.5 million recognized as of the balance sheet date. In addition, these costs related to conditions, such as the March 2007 production stop and prior events, which existed prior to the March 31, 2007 date of the financial statements. Therefore, it appears that information available prior to the issuance of the financial statements indicated that it was probable that a loss had been incurred on the TWS II contract at the date of the financial statements. However, you neither accrued nor disclosed such additional costs in your March 31, 2007 financial statements. While you may not have been able to reasonably estimate a single amount of expected additional costs at the date of issuance of your financial statements, this does not preclude accrual of some amount of reasonably estimated cost. Paragraphs 2 and 3 of FIN 14 require accrual of the best estimate of loss within a range of estimated losses, or when no amount within the range is a better estimate than any other amount, the minimum amount in the range. Therefore, it appears that you should have accrued for at least some portion of reasonably expected additional costs. We believe you should rigorously reassess the timing of your accounting for this matter and advise, as appropriate.
