"F-Series didn't miss a beat last month. With sales up 11 percent in May and 6 percent year-to-date, F-Series is off to its best start since 2000 and is on track to deliver its ninth consecutive year gain. Navigator continues to fly off dealer lots, with an increasing number of customers coming from Mercedes and Land Rover."

WINNING PORTFOLIO

2018 Ford F-Series Super Duty

As a clear leader in the segment, Ford F-Series has broken through the 80,000 mark four times over the last 9 months, a claim no other full-size truck maker can make. This comes with a $1,400 gain in average transaction pricing for the month.

2018 Ford Expedition

High margin SUVs, such as the new Ford Expedition again posted strong retail gains in every region. Expedition average transaction prices grew $12,300 over last year – to $61,400 per SUV. EcoSport retail sales continued to expand in May, with retail sales up 65 percent over April.

2018 Ford Mustang

Ford Mustang sales were up 10.7 percent last month, a strong start to the sports car-selling season. Mustang remains the best-selling sports car both in the U.S. and globally – a lead it has held since first going global three years ago.

2018 Ford Transit

Ford has been America's van leader for 39 years straight. Last month Transit sales totaled 15,513, representing a 12.4 percent gain over year-ago. May represented Transit's best monthly sales performance since launching in 2014.

2018 Lincoln Navigator

Sales of the new Lincoln Navigator increased 139.8 percent at retail and 122.4 percent overall in May. And customers are trending much younger – with approximately 50 percent of buyers between the ages of 35 and 54. More than half of all Navigator buyers are competitive conquests, coming from other brands.
