Wyoming Trial Court Issues Ruling in Riley Ridge Helium Supply Contract Case

As previously disclosed, in November 2014, APMTG Helium, LLC (“APMTG”) filed a case against Denbury Resources Inc. (the “Company”) in the Ninth Judicial District Court of Sublette County, Wyoming, claiming liquidated damages for non-delivery of helium volumes from the Company’s Riley Ridge Unit under a helium supply contract.

On January 21, 2019, the Company received notice of the trial court’s ruling that the Company’s performance was excused by the force majeure provisions of the contract for a 35-day period in 2014, but that the Company should pay APMTG liquidated damages and interest thereon as otherwise provided in the contract. In the event the judgment is not modified or reduced, the Company currently estimates the contractual liquidated damages to be approximately $39.8 million and the interest accrued to date on such damages to be approximately $3.5 million. The contractual liquidated damages, excluding interest, are capped at an aggregate of $46 million over the term of the contract.

The Company’s position continues to be that its contractual obligations have been and continue to be excused by events that fall within the force majeure provisions in the helium supply contract. The Company intends to continue to vigorously defend its position and pursue all of its rights, which may include an appeal of the judgment, the results of which cannot be currently predicted.
