1. Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Nature of the Business

Stanford Investment Group, Inc. was incorporated in the state of California in 1981. It is registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) as an introducing broker-dealer and is a member of the National Association of Securities Dealers. The Company is also registered with the SEC under the Investment Advisory Act of 1940.

Method of Accounting

The Company uses the accrual method of accounting for financial reporting and the cash method of accounting for income tax purposes.

Cash and Cash Equivalents

The Company considers all highly liquid investments with a maturity of three months or less to be cash equivalents.

Some of the Company's cash is held in deposit accounts, which at times may exceed federally insured limits. The Company has not experienced any losses in such accounts, and it believes it is not exposed to any significant credit risk.

Investment

The investment is stated at fair value and consists of common stock in a private company. Fair value and cost are approximately the same as of March 31, 2003.

Deferred Taxes on Income

Deferred taxes on income have been provided on differences between book and taxable income. These differences arise primarily from the use of the cash method of accounting for tax purposes and the excess of depreciation for tax purposes over the amount for financial reporting purposes.

Office Equipment

Office equipment is stated at cost and is depreciated using accelerated and straight-line methods over 5 to 7 years.

1. Summary of Significant Accounting Policies (continued)

Use of Estimates

The process of preparing financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires the use of estimates and assumptions regarding certain types of assets, liabilities, revenues, and expenses. Such estimates primarily relate to unsettled transactions and events as of the date of the financial statements. Accordingly, upon settlement, actual results may differ from estimated amounts.

2. Net Capital Requirements

The Company is subject to the Securities and Exchange Commission Uniform Net Capital Rules (SEC Rule 15c3-1), which requires the maintenance of minimum net capital and requires that the ratio of aggregate indebtedness to net capital, both as defined, shall not exceed 15 to 1. At March 31, 2003, the Company had net capital of $105,254, which was $100,254 in excess of its required net capital of $5,000. The Company's net capital ratio was .12 to 1.

3. Related Party Transactions

One of the board members pays the Company a monthly service fee for services provided by the Company to him. For the year ended March 31, 2003, these fees amounted to $9,600 and are included in service fees and other income in the Statement of Operations.

4. Simple Retirement Account

The Company adopted a Simple IRA Plan comprised of a salary reduction provision and an employer contribution component, which covers substantially all employees with compensation of $5,000 in a calendar year. The employees can defer up to $8,000 of salary per calendar year. Employer contributions to the plan are at the sole discretion of the Company. Employer contributions made to the plan totaled $30,545 for the year.

Board of Directors
Stanford Investment Group, Inc.

In planning and performing our audit of the financial statements and supplemental schedules of Stanford Investment Group, Inc. (the Company), for the year ended March 31, 2003, we considered its internal control structure, including procedures for safeguarding securities, in order to determine our auditing procedures for the purpose of expressing our opinion on the financial statements and not to provide assurance on the internal control structure.

Also, as required by Rule 17a-5(g)(1) of the Securities Exchange Commission (SEC), we have made a study of the practices and procedures followed by the Company including tests of such practices and procedures that we considered relevant to the objectives stated in Rule 17a-5(g) in making the periodic computations of aggregate indebtedness (or aggregate debits) and net capital under Rule 17a-3(a)(11) and for determining compliance with the exemptive provisions of Rule 15c3-3. Because the Company does not carry securities accounts for customers or perform custodial functions relating to customer securities, we did not review the practices and procedures followed by the Company in any of the following:

1. Making quarterly securities examinations, counts, verifications, and comparison
2. Recordation of differences required by Rule 17a-13
3. Complying with the requirements for prompt payment for securities under Section 8 of Federal Reserve Regulation T of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System

The management of the Company is responsible for establishing and maintaining an internal control structure and the practices and procedures referred to in the preceding paragraph. In fulfilling this responsibility, estimates and judgments by management are required to assess the expected benefits and related costs of internal control structure policies and procedures and of the practices and procedures referred to in the preceding paragraph and to assess whether those practices and procedures can be expected to achieve the SEC's above-mentioned objectives. Two of the objectives of an internal control structure and the practices and procedures are to provide management with reasonable but not absolute assurance that assets for which the Company has responsibility are safeguarded against loss from unauthorized use or disposition and that transactions are executed in accordance with management's authorization and recorded properly to permit the preparation of financial statements in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. Rule 17a-5(g) lists additional objectives of the practices and procedures listed in the preceding paragraph.

Because of inherent limitations in any internal control structure or the practices and procedures referred to above, errors or irregularities may occur and not be detected. Also, projection of any evaluation of them to future periods is subject to the risk that they may become inadequate because of changes in conditions or that the effectiveness of their design and operation may deteriorate.

Our consideration of the internal control structure would not necessarily disclose all matters in the internal control structure that might be material weaknesses under standards established by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants. A material weakness is a condition in which the design or operation of the specific internal control structure elements does not reduce to a relatively low level the risk that errors or irregularities in amounts that would be material in relation to the financial statements being audited may occur and not be detected within a timely period by employees in the normal course of performing their assigned functions. However, we noted no matters involving the internal control structure, including procedures for safeguarding securities, that we consider to be material weaknesses as defined above.

We understand that practices and procedures that accomplish the objectives referred to in the second paragraph of this report are considered by the SEC to be adequate for its purposes in accordance with the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and related regulations, and that practices and procedures that do not accomplish such objectives in all material respects indicate a material inadequacy for such purposes. Based on this understanding and on our study, we believe that the Company's practices and procedures were adequate at March 31, 2003, to meet the SEC's objectives.

This report is intended solely for the use of the Board of Directors, management, the SEC, and other regulatory agencies that rely on Rule 17a-5(g) under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 in their regulation of registered brokers and dealers, and should not be used for any other purpose.
