Dear Mr. Crapo:

This is in response to your letter dated July 12, 2005 concerning the shareholder proposal submitted to Procter & Gamble by John Jennings Crapo. On June 30, 2005, we issued our response expressing our informal view that Procter & Gamble could exclude the proposal from its proxy materials for its upcoming annual meeting. You have asked us to reconsider our position.

After reviewing the information contained in your letter, we find no basis to reconsider our position.

Sincerely,

Martin P. Dunn

Dear Mr. Newton:

This is in response to your letter dated May 4, 2005 concerning the shareholder proposal submitted to Procter & Gamble by John Jennings Crapo. Our response is attached to the enclosed photocopy of your correspondence. By doing this, we avoid having to recite or summarize the facts set forth in the correspondence. Copies of all of the correspondence also will be provided to the proponent.

In connection with this matter, your attention is directed to the enclosure, which sets forth a brief discussion of the Division's informal procedures regarding shareholder proposals.

Sincerely,

RE: The Procter & Gamble Company / Proposal Submitted by John J. Crapo

Ladies and Gentlemen:

This letter and the enclosed materials are submitted on behalf of The Procter & Gamble Company (the "Company") in accordance with Rule 14a-8(j) under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Exchange Act").

The Company received a shareholder proposal from John Jennings Crapo in a handwritten submission dated March 11, 2005 (the "March Proposal"), received to the Secretary's Office on March 17. Mr. Crapo requested inclusion of the proposal in the Company's Proxy Statement for its 2005 Annual Meeting of shareholders. Because this submission exceeded 500 words, the Company timely requested that Mr. Crapo submit a revised proposal that complied with the requirements of Rule 14a-8. Mr. Crapo submitted a revised statement dated April 2, 2005 (the "Revised Statement"). This submission, including its additional exhibits, also exceeds 500 words.

The Company intends to omit the Revised Statement as well as the March Proposal under Rule 14a-8(f)(1) on the ground that the proponent has not complied with the word of paragraph (d) and under Rule 14a-8(i)(3) as being inherently vague and indefinite. To the extent the proposal can be read to present a definite recommendation, the recommended action either requests a violation of state law contrary to Rule 14a-8(i)(2) or has been substantially implemented under Rule 14a-8(i)(10), depending on the interpretation. However, neither the Company nor its shareholders should be compelled to struggle with varying interpretations of a submission that not "clearly presented." For these reasons, the Company respectfully requests the Staff's concurrence that no enforcement action will be recommended if the Company omits the March Proposal and the Revised Statement.

Pursuant to Rule 14a-8(j) under the Exchange Act, please find enclosed six copies of the March Proposal and the Revised Statement by Mr. Crapo, this letter, and our correspondence with the proponent concerning his proposal. The Company is simultaneously providing a copy of this submission to Mr. Crapo.

The proposal relates to rescinding a motion

There appears to be some basis for your view that Procter & Gamble may exclude the proposal under rule 14a-8(i)(3), as vague and indefinite. Accordingly, we will not recommend enforcement action to the Commission if Procter & Gamble omits the proposal from its proxy materials in reliance on rule 14a-8(i)(3). In reaching this position, we have not found it necessary to address the alternative bases for omission upon which Procter & Gamble relies.

Senate Passes A Resolution Apologizing For Failure To Pass Anti-Lynching Legislation

James Cameron

▲ As the anti-lynching resolution's co-sponsors, Senators George Allen and Mary L. Landrieu look on, James Cameron, the only known lynching survivor, speaks to the audience gathered on Capitol Hill.

More than a century after the first anti-lynching bill was introduced in Congress, the U.S. Senate apologized for its failure to outlaw the heinous act that took the lives of some 5,000 Blacks nationwide between the 1880s and 1960s.

Sponsored by Sen. Mary L. Landrieu (D-LA) and Sen. George Allen (R-VA), the resolution acknowledged the Senate's predecessors' unjust actions, while recognizing and apologizing for the effects that past inaction has had on the lynching victims and their families.

"If we truly want to move forward," said Sen. Landrieu to the family members of the lynching victims who had gathered at the U.S. Capitol Building, "we must admit that failure and learn from it."

Although seven U.S. presidents and the House of Representatives supported these bills to stop lynching, the Senate, then filled with Southern conservatives, blocked the efforts, often with filibusters.

The only known survivor of a lynching, 91-year-old James Cameron, was present for the apology. When asked how he felt about the resolution, Cameron remarked, "It's 100-something years too late, but I'm glad they're doing it."

On August 7, 1930, when Cameron was only 16 years old, he and his buddies, Abraham Smith and Thomas Shipp, were dragged by a White mob from Grand County Jail in Marion, IN, where they were being held for robbing a White couple, killing the man and raping the woman. All three were beaten with clubs and pick handles, then Smith and Shipp were lynched. Cameron's life was spared by one man's

D-Day for P&G/Gillette deal

By BRETT TRENDS

Gillette Co. shareholders are expected to today approve the legendary firm's $57 billion takeover by consumer-goods giant Procter & Gamble.

A vote is scheduled to take place in Delaware at a special shareholders' meeting.

It was in 1899 that Hub entrepreneur King Camp Gillette launched his patented safety-razor business.

Today, Gillette is among the world's most-recognized brand names, known from Boston to Bangkok.

Gillette stock jumped 94 cents to $51.63 yesterday as traders realized the deal was all but done. P&G stock also rose 94 cents to $53.90. Both shares have risen sharply since late last week.

The deal is still awaiting U.S. and European regulatory approval, but analysts are confident that the transaction will proceed.

The only potential fly in the shaving cream: Secretary of State William F. Galvin, whose investigation continues into whether Gillette's board and advisers sold out shareholders on the cheap.

Galvin wants to know if advisers at Goldman Sachs and UBS low-balled Gillette's value to help company directors hustle through a deal that would make them all fabulously rich.

Gillette CEO James Kilts, who lives in Rye, N.Y., and took the company's helm four years ago, is expected to lead the windfall league. He'll garner a staggering $163 million or more from the sale.

Since Kilts took over, Gillette stock has risen about 58 percent.

ACLU keeps wary eye on defense lawyer shortage

By MAGGIE MULVILL

Civil liberties advocates are tracking the number of Massachusetts criminal defendants who have been unable to find attorneys in the past week, and lawsuits to force prosecutors to drop the cases may not be far behind.

"We are watching this with some concern," said Massachusetts ACLU Executive Director John Reinstein about the state's lawyer shortage, which is leaving poor accused criminals across the state without counsel.

Hundreds of private attorneys paid by the state to take court appointments have refused to take new indigent cases without raise. A commission appointed by Gov. Mitt Romney recommended fee hikes in April, but the Legislature has not approved the funding. In Suffolk County yesterday, 115 accused criminals did not have lawyers, including 15 who remain behind bars, according to figures compiled by Suffolk Lawyers for Justice Inc.

This afternoon, House Ways and Means Chairman Robert A. DeLeo plans to meet with attorneys from Suffolk and Middlesex counties who are pressing for pay increases.

DeLeo, a Winthrop Democrat, said yesterday the problem is not just a "money issue," but the entire system of court-appointments needs to be fixed.
