Wolters Kluwer Tax, Accounting & Legal to Acquire ATX/Kleinrock

With Acquisition, CCH Will Create the Most Comprehensive Suite of Tax and Accounting Solutions in the Industry

Riverwoods, ILL. (August 1, 2006) - CCH, a Wolters Kluwer business and part of the Wolters Kluwer Tax, Accounting & Legal division, today announced that it has signed an agreement to acquire the assets of ATX/Kleinrock. ATX/Kleinrock, headquartered in Rockville, MD, supplies tax preparation, accounting and tax research software solutions to more than 48,000 tax professionals and CPAs throughout the U.S. CCH is a leading provider of tax and accounting law information, software and services (CCHGroup.com).

The acquisition will advance CCH as the professionals' first choice for premier tax and accounting solutions, enhancing the company's ability to meet with equal depth and breadth the special needs of firms across market segments—from solo practitioners to large firms.

As a distinct product line, ATX/Kleinrock will join CCH's portfolio of market-leading research and software solutions. CCH products include CCH Tax Research NetWork, the Accounting Research Manager, U.S. Master Tax Guide and the ProSystem fx Office Suite of tax and accounting software tools that help professionals streamline their workflows, increase productivity and address staffing challenges.

Upon completing the acquisition, CCH will offer the most comprehensive suite of tax and accounting solutions in the industry.

"CCH and ATX/Kleinrock serve tax and accounting professionals in different segments of the market, but we share the same value proposition: We deliver best-of-breed integrated research and software workflow solutions that are designed to meet our customers' special needs," said CCH President and CEO, Kevin Robert. "We are pleased that, with ATX/Kleinrock as part of the CCH family, we will be able to offer professionals in small- to mid-sized firms a dedicated line of deep, expert content and advanced workflow solutions to help them build their strategic business advantage."

Following the closing of the acquisition, CCH will further build on the ATX/Kleinrock portfolio by leveraging its content and technology resources to offer customers a more complete suite of solutions that meet their special needs.

"ATX/Kleinrock and CCH have both demonstrated a strong historic commitment to excellence in providing their respective tax and accounting customers with market-leading solutions and services specifically suited to their needs," said Paul Zoukis, ATX/Kleinrock CEO. "By incorporating and tailoring CCH's technology and rich content, the ATX/Kleinrock product line will be able to accelerate its development of additional integrated software and research solutions."

ATX/Kleinrock is owned by UCG, one of the nation's premier independent providers of business information. UCG is a portfolio of highly focused business and professional publishing companies that provide guidance, information, analysis, data and solutions to customers worldwide. For more information, see www.ucg.com.

ATX/Kleinrock has almost 300 employees and annual revenues of approximately $40 million.

Closing of the acquisition is subject to a number of customary conditions, including satisfaction of all regulatory requirements. The parties expect the acquisition to be consummated during the next 30-60 days. Terms of the acquisition were not disclosed.
