FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

Such statements may be influenced by factors that could cause actual outcomes and results to differ materially from those discussed or projected. Forward-looking statements are subject to risks and are qualified by statements made in this Offering Circular, particularly in the sections captioned, “RISK FACTORS.”

When used in this Offering Circular, the words “believes,” “estimates,” “expects,” “targets,” “predict,” “plan,” “potential,” “anticipates,” “intends” or similar expressions are intended to identify such forward-looking statements. Important factors that could affect the Company and the success of an investment in the Company include market demand for lift equipment, competition in the market for second-hand equipment, general economic conditions that affect the construction industry and other domestic industry and other matters discussed in “RISK FACTORS” herein.

The Company has not undertaken an obligation to update or revise any forward-looking statements to reflect events or circumstances after the date of this Offering Circular.

All written and oral forward-looking statements attributable to the Company or persons acting on behalf of the Company are expressly qualified in their entirety as forward looking statements and should be weighed carefully against the contingencies discussed in “RISK FACTORS.”

Item 2. Distribution Spread

Item 3. Summary Information, Risk Factors and Dilution

SUMMARY

This summary of the offering of the Company's Unit offering (the "Offering") is qualified in its entirety by the other information disclosed in this Offering Circular.

The Company

The Company is a Delaware limited liability company. The Company is managed by Buffalo Forklift, LLC, a New York limited liability company (the "Manager"), as the Company's sole manager with broad powers and discretion to manage the Company's business and assets. Such powers and authority of the Manager include authority to purchase (a) pre-owned lift equipment and, in the Manager's discretion, refurbish such equipment through a third party refurbishing contractor, (b) purchase new lift equipment sourced from a manufacturer in China and (c) re-sell all such lift equipment to third party buyers. Currently, the Company anticipates that approximately 90% of its business will be in the purchase and sale of pre-owned equipment, as opposed to new equipment. The Manager will identify all equipment purchased by the Company and will also identify purchasers for the Company's lift equipment. Profits from the sale of the equipment to third parties, after payment of direct expenses of the transaction, shall be allocated 40% to the Company and 60% to the Manager, as further described herein. The Manager does not receive any other remuneration from the Company.

The Offering

The Company is offering, on a best efforts basis, Units of membership interest in the Company at a price of $1,000 per Unit. The offering is being conducted solely by principal officers of the Company. The offering will terminate on July 31, 2015 unless extended in the discretion of the Manager.

Minimum Investment

The minimum investment is 10 Units at a price of $1,000 per Unit.

Sales Commission

No sales commission or sales charges will be charged in connection with this Offering. There is no underwriter or placement agent involved in this Offering. The Offering is being conducted solely by principal officers of the Company.

RE-INVESTMENT OF PROFITS AND DISTRIBUTIONS

Purchasers of Units may elect one of two options for the treatment of their distributions. Investors may elect: (a) to receive a distribution of profits bi-annually as of June 30 and December 31 of each fiscal year, or (b) to have distributions reinvested in Units of the Company. If investors do not make a selection, the Company will reinvest distributions in Units. Investors can elect either option in the signature page of the Subscription Agreement that is used in this Offering. Unit holders may change their distribution election by giving the Company not less than 60 days written notice prior to January 1 of the fiscal year in which such election would take effect.

Investors who chose to have their distributions reinvested in Units will increase their percentage interest in the Company and compound their total return over time. At the end of each six-month period, the Manager will determine the amount of the distribution-per-Unit for such six-month period based upon operations of the Company and available cash.

- Investors who elect to receive their distributions in cash bi-annually, will receive a check in an amount equal to the distribution-per-Unit times the number of Units they hold. Such distributions shall be payable within thirty (30) days of the end of such period. The Manger may, in its sole discretion, pay distributions quarterly or monthly.
- Investors who elect to have their distributions reinvested will be deemed to have used their distribution to purchase additional Units (which may be fractional Units). For example, if an investor's distribution for a six-month period is $10,000 and the investor elects to have his distribution re-invested, that investor would receive ten (10) Units in the Company in lieu of receiving cash.

Investors are encouraged to have their distributions re-invested because it allows the Manager to more fully deploy the cash of the Company in equipment transactions. The Company will be required to reserve cash for distributions to investors who elect to receive their distributions in cash. The Manager also must reserve cash for investors who give notice of their intention to redeem Units, as provided below.

REDEMPTION OF UNITS

Units are redeemable at $1,000 per Unit (the amount of the purchase price for the Unit in this Offering). Holders of Units may request that the Company redeem their Units as of June 30 or December 31 of each year (each a "Redemption Date" and together the "Redemption Dates"), subject to the limitations and restrictions on redemption as more fully set forth herein. In order to cause the redemption of Units, a holder of Units must give the Company written notice not less than 90 days prior to a Redemption Date. Such written notice should specify the number of Units to be redeemed and the Redemption Date as to which such redemption shall be effective.

Upon redemption, as provided above, the Company shall pay to the holder of the Units the amount of the original purchase price for the Units ($1,000) times the number of Units redeemed. Partial redemption of Units is permitted. The Company reserves the right to deny or defer Unit redemptions if the Manager believes, in its sole discretion, that the Company lacks the cash required to fund such redemption and reasonably meet its operating obligations or if such redemption would impair the Company's ability to deliver adequate returns to remaining Unit Holder.

TRANSFER OF UNITS

There is no market for the Units and the Company does not intend to facilitate the making of a market for the Units. The Units are transferable subject to (a) the consent of the Manager, not to be unreasonably withheld and (b) applicable securities laws. Any transfer of a Unit shall be made only in compliance with all applicable securities laws and the Company may require the transferor to obtain and deliver to the Company an opinion of counsel (reasonably acceptable, as to both the opinion and the counsel, to the Company) that such proposed transfer so complies.

RISK FACTORS

Limited Liquidity. Generally, the Units are redeemable only as provided herein under REDEMPTION OF UNITS. It is possible that the Company will be unable to redeem Units or that it will reduce bi-annual distributions-per-Unit in the event that it has insufficient cash or that equipment cannot be liquidated as anticipated by the Manager. See REDEMPTION OF UNITS. Also, there is no market for the Units and the Company does not intend to facilitate the making of a market for the Units. While the Units are transferable, any such transfer requires the consent of the Manager and will be subject to applicable securities laws.

Conflicts of Interest. The Company's Manager, Buffalo Forklift LLC, is engaged in the same business of buying and selling left equipment as the Company. The Manager also may have other investors who participate in the business directly through the Manager. In making decisions as to investment in equipment and related matters, the Manager must choose between allocating equipment and opportunities between itself, other investors and the Company. Investors in the Company are relying on the Manager to honor its fiduciary duty to treat the Company fairly and to act in the best interests of the Company.

No Participation in Management. As a holder of Units, you will have no say in the operation of the Company, the purchase of equipment, the mark-up on new equipment sold by the Company, to third parties or the negotiations with respect to the re-sale price of used equipment. If you are unhappy with the Company's operations or performance, your sole remedy is to request redemption of your Unit(s), which may be effected twice per year as provided above in REDEMPTION OF UNITS.

No Minimum Offering. There is no minimum amount that must be raised by the Company in order to accept subscriptions for Units. There is no assurance that the Company will raise the maximum offering of $5 million. If the Company is unable to raise at least $500,000 in this offering, it will operate on a more limited basis with fewer pieces of equipment.

Reliance on One Key Individual. The Manager has 2 individuals who actively buy and sell lift equipment on a regular basis. Of these persons, the President of the Company and the Manager, Arcangelo Capozzolo is critical to the success of the business. Neither the Company nor the Manager maintains life insurance on the life of Mr. Capozzolo. In the event that Mr. Capozzolo was unexpectedly unable to act in his principal role in the business, the Company would most likely liquidate its assets and wind up its operations.

Investment Returns Could Decline Due to Competition and Demand. Our profit margins on the sale of new or refurbished equipment may decline materially if the market for such equipment becomes more competitive or if demand for such equipment declines for any reason, including general trends in the economy of the United States.

Reinvestment Time May Slow Down as Competition Increases. In the event that the market for heavy equipment becomes more competitive, we may experience delays in the time it takes to complete refurbishment of used equipment with the result that your investment will be illiquid for a longer period and we may not achieve the number of purchases and sales per fiscal year that we have achieved historically. Our rate of reinvestment of the funds significantly affects your overall annual return.

Supply Could Increase. In the event that pricing for new equipment becomes more competitive or if new suppliers enter the second-hand equipment market, there could be an increase in the over-all supply of new and/or second-hand lift equipment. In such event, the demand for, and the value of, lift equipment could decline, thereby reducing the profitability of our business and your return on your investment in Units.

Our Transaction Volume Could Decrease. If we are unable to obtain second-hand equipment readily because of a decline in the historic levels of equipment coming in to the second-hand market, or if we experience issues with our contract manufacturer of new equipment, our transaction volume will decrease with the result that we may be unable to timely reinvest funds. If we experience a decline in transaction volume, your return will be reduced.

Cobra® is a New Venture for Which the Manager Has No Prior Experience or Track Record. In connection with new equipment that has been manufactured for re-sale by the Manager, the Manager sometimes does business under the name, “Cobra Lift Trucks.” The Manager works directly with a supplier located in China to manufacture its new equipment inventory under its house brand “Cobra Lift Truck®.” The Cobra lifts are based on a non-proprietary designs utilizing engines manufactured by globally recognized manufacturers such as GM, Toyota, Deutz and Isuzu. The Manager is seeking to establish itself as a supplier of a broad range of new lift equipment. Equipment will be sold from inventory warehoused with the Manager’s third-party refurbishers, or can be custom ordered with delivery possible in a three-week to four-month timeframe, depending upon the equipment. This is a new business and product line for the Manager. Consequently, the Manager has no experience or track record in this area. While we are confident in the Manager's ability to identify second-hand lift equipment that can be re-marketed successfully, we may experience smaller profit margins with new equipment and it is possible that the Company could lose money buying and selling the Cobra® equipment.

Cobra Lift Truck® Has No or Minimal Name Recognition in the Marketplace at this Time.

Cobra Lift Truck® is not an established brand in the marketplace. We anticipate that we will price the Cobra Lift Truck® equipment to be a cost effective alternative to other brands of new equipment. As a result, we may not be able to command the profit margins that we have experienced with second-hand and refurbished equipment.

Cobra Lift Truck® Has No Track Record for Quality and Reliability.

Cobra Lift Truck® is manufactured by an equipment manufacturer in China. While this manufacturer provides equipment for other major label brands, we have no experience with the quality or reliability level of this equipment and we do not have a written contract with the manufacturer. The equipment is covered by a manufacturer's warranty for 18 months or 2,000 hours and additional warranty options are available through third parties with whom we contract. In addition, Cobra Lift Equipment LLC will provide technical support for purchasers. We do not expect warranty issues to affect investors.

Risks Associated with the Cobra Warranty. The manufacturer of the Cobra equipment offers a manufacturer's parts warranty for 18 months or 2,000 hours and additional warranty options are available through third parties with whom we contract. We have no experience with the willingness or ability of the manufacturer of the Cobra equipment to stand behind its warranty.

Enforcement of Agreements with Chinese Manufacturer. Because the manufacturer of the Cobra equipment is in China, our ability to enforce our agreements with this manufacturer may be minimal.

Risks Associated with International Suppliers. The new equipment to be sold under the Cobra Lift Truck® brand is sourced from a manufacturer in China. Political and economic considerations in China, the financial stability of our supplier, the availability of parts and raw materials to our supplier, equipment quality issues, currency exchange rates, transportation availability and cost, transportation security, inflation and other factors may affect this operation. These factors are beyond the Company's control. Additionally, the United States' foreign trade policies, tariffs and other impositions on imported goods may also affect this part of our business. While the Company will make every effort to anticipate and manage the risks associated with this business, there is no assurance that we will be successful in doing so.

Exposure to Third Party Claims for Failure of Equipment Failure. It is possible that in the event that a piece of lift equipment fails in the field, the Company could have exposure for personal injury or property damage or both. The Company carries liability insurance with an aggregate limit of $2 million. If a claim against the Company is successful and exceeds such insurance coverage, assets of the Company (including your investment and your profits if they are then accrued but un-distributed) may be subject to the claims of such creditor(s).

Insolvency of a Refurbishment Contractor. The Company will contract with third party refurbishment contractors throughout the United States to perform refurbishment services. The Company will not do any of the refurbishment work itself. If a refurbishment contractor becomes insolvent or is subjected to a bankruptcy proceeding while our equipment was in its possession, it is possible that our equipment could be levied on by creditors of the refurbishment contractor. The Company will file blanket Uniform Commercial Code (“UCC”) financing statements in the jurisdiction of each equipment refurbishment contractor stating that from time to time the Company’s equipment is present at the facility of the refurbishment contractor for servicing but that such equipment remains the property of the Company. While the Company believes the filing of such UCC financing statements provides significant protection in the event of an insolvency of a contractor, there is no guarantee that our filings will be respected.

Tax Risk. The Company will be treated as a partnership for tax purposes. As a result, the Company will not, itself, pay income tax. Instead, the Company’s income is deemed to be passed through to the Unit holders. The Company will endeavor to distribute enough cash each year to the Unit holders to cover the amount of taxes attributed to the Unit holders each year. However, there is no assurance that the Company will have adequate cash reserves available for distribution to cover such taxes.

Financials Statements Not Audited. While our financial statements have been prepared in accordance with GAAP, they have not been audited by a registered accounting firm. We do not intend to provide audited financial statements in the future. The benefit of having an outside independent accounting firm undertake an audit is that it provides assurances that the Company has presented a true and fair view of its financial performance and position. The audit would add cost to the Company’s operations, which is the reason the manager has elected not to commission an audit. Unit Holders will not have the benefit of having an outside audit and will be dependent on the Company to fairly present its financial results and position.

No Third Party Due Diligence. The Company is undertaking this offering without an underwriter or third-party placement agent. By selling the Units directly through its principal officers, the Company is enabling investors to avoid sales related compensation and expense that is exacted by an underwriter or placement agent. Such compensation and expense can be material. However, investors will not have the benefit of the independent due diligence performed by a sales agent which may provide a significant investor protection against misstatements in offering materials.

Deemed Consent. The Company’s Operating Agreement contains the following provision: “Under the Operating Agreement, and in accordance with Delaware law, in the event the Manager requires the consent of the Members in order to take action on behalf of the Company, it must first provide written notice of such action to the Members of the Company. Members who have not affirmatively objected in writing to any such proposed action within thirty (30) calendar days after the notice is mailed will be deemed to have consented to the proposed action set forth in the Manager’s notice, meaning that the Manager may act without having received your affirmative consent on a given proposal.” As a result, in the event that you disagree with an action for which your consent has been requested, you must affirmatively object by giving the Manager a written notice. This provision may make it easier for the Manager to obtain the approval of the Unit Holders where such approval is contested because Unit Holders who do not pay attention or who miss the deadline are deemed to side with the Manager. This provision also assists the Manager to obtain Unit Holder approval where obtaining the affirmative consent of the required Unit Holders is made difficult by lack of response.

Exclusive Venue for Disputes is in Erie County, New York. The Company's Operating Agreement contains the following provision. "The Courts of the State of New York, located in Erie County, are the exclusive venue for any disputes arising from or related to this Agreement." As a result, in the event of a dispute with the Company or its Manager, your exclusive venue for legal action would be through the courts located in Erie County, New York. This venue restriction may be inconvenient to you or impose greater cost than you might otherwise incur to pursue a legal action in your local court.

Item 4. Plan of Distribution

No underwriters or dealers will be involved in the Offering. There will be no sales commission or sales charges in connection with the offering of Units. Arcangelo Capozzolo, the Company's President, and Philip Sciolino, the Company's Vice President, will promote the Offering and may act as salespersons. The Units are being offered on a best efforts basis. Currently, the Units are expected to be offered only in the State of New York.

Item 5. Use of Proceeds

Proceeds from the sale of Units will be invested and re-invested primarily in pre-owned lift equipment and secondarily in new lift equipment. Pre-owned equipment will be refurbished if appropriate prior to sale. Over time, funds from the sale of equipment will be reinvested in other equipment and used to fund cash distributions and Unit redemptions. None of the proceeds from the offering will be used by the Manager for its operational overhead. There are no fees payable to the Manager. Following each sale of a piece of equipment, the Company shall receive a return of its capital investment in the equipment (including purchase price, refurbishment expense and transaction expenses) and the Manager and the Company will divide profits from the sale of each piece of equipment on the following basis: 60% to the Manager / 40% to the Company.

The Equipment Purchase Program Agreement

The Company and the Manager shall enter into Management Agreement pursuant to which the Manager shall carry out the business of the Company. The following is an outline of the Equipment Purchase Program Agreement.

Bank Account

1. The Company holds a bank account (the "Dedicated Bank Account") which shall be controlled by the Manager.
2. The proceeds of the offering shall be deposited into the Dedicated Bank Account.

Pre-Owned Equipment Purchases

1. The Company will identify second-hand industrial lift equipment that it believes can be refurbished and re-sold at a profit. Such lift equipment may include telescope lift equipment, forklifts, boom lifts, scissors lifts and push around lifts.
2. The Company will use funds in the Dedicated Bank Account to purchase equipment. In each case the amount to be withdrawn of an equipment purchase will be: (i) the amount of the purchase price of the equipment (the “Original Purchase Price”) and (ii) an additional amount estimated to be approximately 20% of the amount of such purchase price, as determined by the Manager, as an advance against the cost of refurbishment (the “Refurbishment Advance”) if, in the opinion of the Manager, the equipment requires refurbishment.
3. The Manager will not charge the Company any commission with respect to such purchase of equipment.

Refurbishment of Pre-Owned Equipment

1. The Manager will arrange for the equipment purchased by the Company to be shipped to a third party refurbishment contractor. Neither the Manager nor the Company will perform any refurbishment of equipment.
2. The Manager will contract on behalf of the Company (using the Refurbishment Advance) with a third-party equipment refurbishment contractor. Currently, the Manager does business with eleven such contractors. They are located in:

Angola, Indiana
Gallatin, Tennessee
Batavia, New York
Port St. Lucie, Florida
Mulberry, Florida
Rockdale, Illinois
West Chicago, Illinois
Lancaster, South Carolina
Blacksburg, South Carolina
Centerton, Arkansas
Hartford, Wisconsin

The Manager will direct the shipment of the Company’s equipment to the most appropriate refurbishment facility based upon proximity and availability. The Manager may expand its network of refurbishment contractors and the locations where equipment can be refurbished.

3. Typical refurbishment of a forklift consists of servicing, paint, new parts (as required) and new tires (as required).
4. If the equipment purchased already has been refurbished at the time of purchase, the Manager will immediately commence remarketing efforts. The Manager will not withdraw a Refurbishment Advance from the Dedicated Bank Account if the equipment has already been refurbished.

Re-Marketing of Pre-Owned Equipment

1. The time for refurbishment and re-marketing of a typical piece of equipment averages two to three weeks from the date that the equipment is purchased. When the equipment has been refurbished, the Manager will re-market it through its ongoing sales program, including its web site and e-mail newsletter. The Manager expects that the Company will hold each piece of equipment (from the purchase date through the date of re-sale) for approximately four months, on average.
2. Once a third-party buyer for the equipment is found, the Manager will contract to re-sell the equipment to such third-party buyer. All sales of equipment will be concluded at prices and on terms agreed to by the Manager with third party buyers. Such decisions shall be made by the Manager, in its sole discretion.

Return of Capital and Profit Sharing on Pre-Owned Equipment

1. Upon conclusion of the sale of the equipment, the Manager will deposit in the Company's Dedicated Bank Account an amount equal to (a) a return of the Original Purchase Price and Refurbishment Advance (if any), plus (b) the Company's allocation of 40% of the Profit derived from the transaction. In the event that, notwithstanding the best efforts of the Manager, the equipment sells at a price that is less than the Original Purchase Price plus the actual cost of refurbishment, the Company will suffer a loss on the equipment transaction and the Manager will not make any profit.
2. In each case, "Profit" on a piece of equipment shall consist of: the gross sale price of the equipment to a third-party buyer less (a) the aggregate Original Purchase Price, plus (b) the actual cost of refurbishment (if any), plus (c) any direct costs of the sale transaction such as shipping and third-party commissions paid in connection with the sale (if applicable). For clarity, if the actual cost of refurbishment is more or less than the amount of the Refurbishment Advance from investors, the Company will use such actual cost for purposes of calculating "Profit." If the amount of the Refurbishment Advance exceeds the actual cost of refurbishment, the Company will be refunded the difference to the Company. Expenses of the transaction shall not include general operating overhead of the Manager.

An example of an expected pre-owned equipment transaction is as follows.

- The Manager identifies a package of pre-owned equipment or an individual piece of pre-owned equipment offered by a third party seller.
- The Manager evaluates the equipment and negotiates a price.
- The Manager arranges for the Company to purchase the equipment using funds in the Dedicated Bank Account.
- The Manager draws the Original Purchase Price and the Refurbishment Advance from the Dedicated Bank Account.
- Upon purchase, the Manager arranges for the equipment to be shipped to the closest refurbishing vendor, or the refurbishing vendor with the most capacity at that time.
- An assessment of the equipment is made at the refurbishing site by the refurbishing contractor together with the Manager. If equipment is not reasonably close to being in the condition that was represented by the seller, the equipment may be returned to the seller and the transaction unwound.
- The extent of needed refurbishment is determined and refurbishing is then authorized by the Manager and undertaken by the contractor.
- At such time as the equipment is refurbished and ready to be re-sold, the equipment is included in the Manager's re-marketing program, which includes the Manager's web site, its e-mail newsletter and other advertising channels.
- Once a buyer is found, the Manager will use its best efforts to negotiate a favorable re-sale price for the equipment.
- Upon reaching an agreement for the sale of the equipment with a third-party buyer, the Company will sell the equipment to the third-party buyer on terms negotiated by the Manager. The Manager will arrange for the equipment to be shipped to the buyer as part of the transaction with the cost being treated as a transaction expense that is netted from the gross proceeds of the sale.
- The Manager looks for the most cost-effective transportation available.
- Upon consummation of the sale, the Company determines the amount of the Profit. Funds are deposited in the Dedicated Bank Account in an amount equal to: (a) the Original Purchase Price and the actual refurbishment cost (which constitutes a return of the Company's capital), and (b) an allocation of 40% of the Profit.
- The Manager only makes money on transactions where the Company makes money. The Company does not pay any fees or general overhead reimbursement to the Manager.

New Inventory

1. The Company may purchase new industrial lift equipment at wholesale from a manufacturer in China. Such lift equipment may include telescope lift equipment, forklifts, boom lifts, scissors lifts and push around lifts.
2. The Manager markets this new equipment under the name, Cobra Lift Truck® (sometimes referred to herein as “Cobra”). When the manager markets the Cobra equipment, it does so using Cobra Lift Truck® as a “d/b/a.” The equipment bears the Cobra brand name and logo.
3. The Manager will withdraw from the Company’s Dedicated Bank Account the amount of the purchase price of the equipment, which will include the cost of shipping, handling, insurance, taxes or other fees associated with the purchase and transportation of the equipment from China. This cost, in the aggregate, is referred to in the case of new Cobra equipment as the “Original Purchase Price.”
4. No Refurbishment Advance will be collected in connection with the new Cobra® equipment.

Marketing of New Equipment

1. The Manager will market the new equipment through its ongoing sales program, including its web site and e-mail newsletter. We expect that sale of new equipment should occur three weeks to four months after the equipment is posted as being for sale in the Cobra marketing channels.
2. The Manager expects to mark up the new equipment by 10% to 30% of the Original Purchase Price, depending on the type of equipment and market factors. This estimate of the mark-up is based solely on the experience of the Manager and represents an estimate of what the market for new equipment will bear. The Manager intends to price the Cobra® equipment aggressively and to compete against more established brands on the basis of price. There is no assurance as to the mark-up margins that will be achieved.
3. Once a third-party buyer for the equipment is found, the Manager will arrange for the Company to re-sell the equipment to such third-party buyer.

Return of Capital and Profit Sharing on New Equipment

1. Upon conclusion of the sale of your equipment, the Company will deposit in the Company’s Dedicated Bank Account an amount equal to (a) the Original Purchase Price, plus (b) of 40% of the Profit derived from the transaction.

2. In each case, "Profit" on a piece of equipment shall consist of: the gross sale price of the equipment by the Company to a third-party buyer less (a) the Original Purchase Price and (b) any direct costs of the sale of an individual piece of equipment to a third-party buyer including shipping, insurance during transport, third party commissions and freight commission paid in connection with the sale of the equipment. "Profit" shall not include any commission to the Manager or general operating overhead of the Manager.
3. In the event that equipment is ultimately sold at a loss (ie: less than the Original Purchase Price), the Company will suffer a loss. The Manager would deposit in the Company's Dedicated Bank Account the net proceeds of the sale and would not receive any compensation.

An example of an expected new equipment transaction is as follows.

- The Manager orders new equipment on behalf of the Company from its manufacturer in China. Alternatively, a third party customer of the Manager orders lift equipment to be custom manufactured and sold by the Manager.
- The Manager withdraws from the Company's Dedicated Bank Account the amount of the Original Purchase Price.
- The equipment is shipped to the United States and warehoused in a contractor's facility or in the Manager's warehouse in Clarence, New York.
- The equipment is included in the Manager's Cobra marketing program, which includes the Cobra web sites, e-mail newsletter and other advertising channels.
- Once a buyer is found, the Manager will undertake to reach an agreement for the sale of the equipment to the party buyer at a mark-up from the Original Purchase Price.
- Upon reaching an agreement for the sale of the equipment, the Manager will arrange for the equipment to be shipped to the buyer as part of the transaction. This cost, together with insurance, handling and freight brokerage commissions (if any) is netted from the gross proceeds of the sale as a transaction cost.
- The Manager looks for the most cost-effective transportation available, typically by identifying return haul trucks with capacity.
- Upon consummation of the sale, the Manager will determine the amount of the Profit. The Manager will then deposit in the Company's Dedicated Bank Account in an amount equal to: (a) the Original Purchase Price, and (b) 40% of the Profit.

Compensation to the Manager

The Manager will receive 60% of Profits upon a completed sale of each piece of equipment owned by the Company. The Manager will not be paid any fees or commissions by the Company. The Manager will not assess any of its general operating overhead or cost of doing business from the Company. The Manager will cover all of its own operating expenses, including its equipment marketing channels and sales staff, from its allocation of Profits from completed sales of equipment. The Manager is compensated only when the Company is making a profit.

Summary of the Operating Agreement of the Company

Included with this Memorandum as Exhibit 2.2 is the Operating Agreement of the Company (the "Operating Agreement"). By executing the Subscription Agreement for Units, investors are also executing the Operating Agreement.

Subject to certain limitations set forth in the Operating Agreement, the Manager will have the right and power to run all of the day to day and other affairs of the Company, with the power to bind it in equipment transactions. The Manager will identify and select all of the Company's equipment and make decisions as the refurbishment of the Company's pre-owned equipment. The Manager is authorized to execute any and all documents on behalf of the Company that are necessary or appropriate in connection with the operation of the Company's business. The Manager is not required to devote its full time to the business and affairs of the Company, but shall devote such time as is reasonably necessary to perform its duties under the Operating Agreement and to manage and operate the Company's assets and conduct its business.

The Manager has authority, in its sole discretion, to issue additional Units of Membership interest in future offerings by the Company. The Manager shall not issue Units for consideration of less than the price per Unit in this offering ($1,000 per Unit).

Any records maintained by the Company or the Manager on behalf of the Company in the regular course of business may be kept in electronic form, provided that the records so kept can be converted into clearly legible written form within a reasonable period of time. The records of the Company and the Manager, when acting on behalf of the Company, may be inspected during normal business hours at the offices of the Manager not more than one per year by Unit holders or their representatives.

The Manager is authorized to sell all or substantially all of the assets of the Company at any time and from time to time without any prior approval of the Unit holders. In addition, the Manager is authorized to terminate the business of the Company and wind up its operations at any time in its sole discretion. In such event, all equipment of the Company will be liquidated and the assets of the Company distributed to the Unit holders based upon their Unit holdings.

The Company believes that a premise of any Member's investment in Units is that the Manager possesses unique and valuable acumen in the business of buying and selling lift equipment. Consequently, the Manager may not be removed by the Members unless such action for removal is specifically granted by an unwaivable provision of Delaware Law.

Tax Considerations

The Company will be treated as a partnership for tax purposes. As a result, the Company will not, itself, pay income tax. Instead, the Company's income is deemed to be passed through to the Unit holders. With respect to Unit Holders who elect to have their distributions reinvested (rather than receive them in cash) the Company reserves the option (but is not obligated) in the discretion of the Manager to distribute to those Unit Holders a "tax distribution" to cover (or partially cover) the taxes attributable to taxable income from the Company. There is no assurance that the Company (a) will make a tax distribution or (b) will have adequate cash reserves available for a tax distribution of any fiscal year of operations.

The Unit holders will receive a statement on Form K-1 each year showing, among other things, the taxable income received from the Company.

The Manager will act as the Company's tax partner and is authorized to represent and bind the Company before taxing authorities.

Duration of the Offering

This offering will terminate on July 31, 2015, unless extended in the discretion of the Manager.

Item 6. Description of the Manager

The Manager's History and Overview

The Manager is a New York limited liability company and is the sole manager of the Company. No interest in the Manager is offered hereby. The Manager will have sole discretion and authority on behalf of the Company to identify new and pre-owned lift equipment, purchase the equipment, refurbish the equipment (if applicable) and remarket the equipment. Subject to certain limitations set forth in the Operating Agreement, the Manager will have the right and power to run the day to day and other affairs of the Company, with the power to bind it.

The Manager has over five years of experience in the business of buying and selling pre-owned lift equipment. The Manager has no refurbishment facilities of its own and equipment is warehoused with third-party refurbishers until it is re-sold.

The Manager sometimes does business as "Cobra Lift Equipment." The Manager contracts with a supplier located in China to manufacture its new equipment inventory under its house brand "Cobra Lift Truck®." The Cobra lifts are based on a non-proprietary designs utilizing engines manufactured by globally recognized manufacturers such as GM, Toyota, Deutz and Isuzu. The Manager, through its Cobra brand, is seeking to establish itself as a supplier of a broad range of new lift equipment. Equipment will be sold from inventory warehoused with the Manager's third-party refurbishers, or can be custom ordered with delivery possible in a three-week to four-month timeframe, depending upon the equipment.

Industry Overview

A “forklift” or “forklift truck” is a powered industrial truck used to lift and move heavy materials over short distances. A forklift has a hydraulic lifting mechanism and forks to carry, push, pull, lift, stack or tier material. Industrial lift equipment can be found in many industries and business sectors, including manufacturing, rentals, warehousing and distributing firms, retail stores, agriculture, aviation, oil and gas, and private use. Second-hand and refurbished lift equipment is generally purchased by businesses anticipating occasional or seasonal use, at a lower duty cycle, whereas a businesses anticipating near constant use requiring a significant amount of uptime are more likely to purchase new equipment. While demand for industrial lift equipment depends on the general economic conditions of the markets the Company serves, we anticipate an increase in demand, both domestically and internationally, in the years to come.

In 2013, the top twenty manufacturers of forklifts posted sales of $30.4 billion with 944,405 machines sold. (Bond, Josh (August 1, 2013) "Top 20 Lift Truck Suppliers, 2013" - Modern Materials Handling). The total U.S. forklift market in 2013 is estimated to have been approximately $33 billion. ("Forklift & Handling Equipment Industry Report". Pell Research. - <http://www.pellresearch.com/forklift-conveyor-material-handling-equipment-manufacturing/>).

Competitive Advantages of the Manager and the Company

Integral to the Manager's business strategy is its commitment to keeping transaction and overhead costs down. These savings in overhead and operating costs enable the Manager to compete effectively on behalf of the Company.

As an example, by using third parties to refurbish and warehouse used equipment, the Manager is able to control costs associated with inventory storage, labor, parts, and maintenance and dedicate a significant portion of its operating budget to marketing. The Manager spends over $60,000 monthly on advertising equipment using the following outlets: the Manager's website, the Cobra Lift Truck® website, trade journals, other equipment dealers and the Manager's weekly newsletter.

Cobra Lift Truck®, the Company's house brand of new lift equipment, is manufactured in China using industry standard engines combined with a non-proprietary design. This allows the Manager to keep prices for new equipment low without sacrificing quality or reliability.

Typical Costs Associated with Equipment

The purchase price expected to be paid by the Company for pre-owned equipment generally will range from $7,000 to $75,000 and is dependent on the specific type of equipment bought. The reconditioning process varies based on the need of a specific piece of equipment. Typical refurbishment of a forklift consists of servicing, paint, new parts (as required) and new tires (as required). Reconditioning the equipment is expected to cost from $3,000 to $7,000, and the equipment is expected to be re-sold for prices ranging from $15,000 to $150,000.

The Manager anticipates that approximately 10% of the Company's total business (new and second-hand equipment together) will consist of new equipment to be marketed under the Cobra Lift Truck® brand. The Manager has no prior history in the wholesale purchase and sale of privately manufactured new equipment.

Intellectual Property of the Manager

The Cobra Lift Truck® brand is owned by the Manager. The Manager has no patent protection on the designs of lift equipment manufactured for the Cobra Lift Truck® brand. The Manager owns the registration for the "Cobra Lift Truck®" trademark.

Item 7. Description of Property

Description of Equipment to be Bought and Sold

The Company will transact in the following types of industrial lift equipment.

- Forklifts A “forklift” or “forklift truck” is a powered industrial truck used to lift and move heavy materials over short distances. A forklift has a hydraulic lifting mechanism and forks to carry, push, pull, lift, stack or tier material. Industrial lift equipment can be found in many industries and business sectors, including manufacturing, rentals, warehousing and distributing firms, retail stores, agriculture, aviation, oil and gas, and private use.
- Boom lifts An elevated work platform (also known as a “cherry picker,” “boom lift,” “man lift,” “basket crane” or “hydaladder”) is a type of aerial work platform that consists of a platform or bucket at the end of a hydraulic lifting system.
- Telehandlers A machine (Sometimes referred to as a “telescopic handler,” or “telehandler”) widely used in agriculture and industry. It is similar in appearance and function to a forklift but is more a crane than forklift, with the increased versatility of a single telescopic boom that can extend forwards and upwards from the vehicle. On the end of the boom the operator can fit one of several attachments, such as a bucket, pallet forks, muck grab, or winch.
- Scissor lifts A scissor lift is a type of platform that can usually only move vertically. The mechanism to achieve this is the use of linked, folding supports in a criss-cross "X" pattern, known as a scissor mechanism. The upward motion is achieved by the application of pressure to the outside of the lowest set of supports, elongating the crossing pattern, and propelling the work platform vertically. The platform may also have an extending "bridge" to allow closer access to the work area, because of the inherent limits of vertical-only movement. The contraction of the scissor action can be hydraulic, pneumatic or mechanical. Depending on the power system employed on the lift, it may require no power to enter "descent" mode, but rather a simple release of hydraulic or pneumatic pressure.

Warehousing of Equipment

The Manager will contract on behalf of the Company with eleven (11) third-party refurbishment contractors to handle equipment. They are located in:

Angola, Indiana
 Gallatin, Tennessee
 Batavia, New York
 Port St. Lucie, Florida
 Mulberry, Florida
 Rockdale, Illinois
 West Chicago, Illinois

Lancaster, South Carolina
Blacksburg, South Carolina
Centerton, Arkansas
Hartford, Wisconsin

Other refurbishment contractors may be added or substituted in place of an existing contractor. The Manager may expand its network of refurbishment contractors and the locations where equipment can be refurbished.

The Manager will direct the shipment of the Company's equipment to the most appropriate refurbishment facility based upon proximity and availability. The Company anticipates that new inventory will also be housed with our refurbishment contractors prior to re-sale to third party customers.
