Chair Gary Gensler,

Please use your Office to Require Corporations to Be Transparent about how they affect Climate Change which affects everyone everywhere. You can Require Corporations to be Good Corporate Citizens by having them disclose: gas emissions and all climate risks they may be producing, data that identifies fair treatment of their employees & diversification in their hiring practices, data on the impact their operations have on communities where they are located from their operations such as benefits versus harm of their impact; how they include the surrounding community so the company can be a force for good locally as well as globally; and disclosure of their Political Spending. The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) has a responsibility and opportunity to stop this corporate greenwashing by requiring meaningful disclosure. As someone who worked for a Good Corporate Citizen I witnessed their hiring of the disadvantaged & mentally limited for jobs for which they were trained & were successful in performing, for participating in the surrounding community by using local services, having private sales for the community, taking responsibility for reporting any street or traffic issues of the community to the City with follow up to ensure resolution of issue. If we are to Save Our Planet, Corporations must be Good Citizens & support their surrounding communities as we all support the neighborhoods where we live to make them better for all of us. It's time for inclusion & solidarity to help those we are connected to by location, business, to make all aspects of our social structure work for the betterment of all and the Greater Good Of American Society.
