Re: Pay Ratio Disclosure, File No. S7-07-13

Dear Ms. Murphy,

I am an investor.

As I fully support the concept of freedom, I am surprised that this step requires enactment by the SEC. I am an investor and cannot imagine that salaries, bonuses, and management vs worker ratios for such are not mandatorily disclosed. How is one to choose to invest wisely without such important information.

I strongly support regulations that would require publicly-traded companies to disclose CEO-to-median worker pay ratios. As income inequality reaches unprecedented heights, the public has the right to know which corporations are fueling the yawning gap between rich and poor. It is also a crucial component in deciding which candidate to support.

Disclosure of CEO-to-worker pay ratios are also crucial for investors. This information is important for determining whether corporations are diverting resources to executives at the expense of long-term investments and workforce development. Additionally, investors need to be able to gauge whether executives' compensation is falling in line with their performance.

Sincerely,

Marguerite Kalaydjian
