Re: Pay Ratio Disclosure, File No. S7-07-13

Dear Ms. Murphy,

I am an investor.

I strongly support regulations that would require publicly-traded companies to disclose CEO-to-median worker pay ratios. As income inequality reaches unprecedented heights, the public has the right to know which corporations are fueling the yawning gap between rich and poor.

Disclosure of CEO-to-worker pay ratios are also crucial for investors. This information is important for determining whether corporations are diverting resources to executives at the expense of long-term investments and workforce development. Additionally, investors need to be able to gauge whether executives' compensation is falling in line with their performance.

My husband and I have Roth accounts, pensions, and diversified investments. We've been discussing getting out of any investments associated with Wall Street or actually, with any corporations at all - because they are NOT being regulated as they should be.

This issue is not even about regulation, per se: it sets up no multiplier of lowest-paid worker wage for a cap for CEO pay, as all the civilized countries in the world have. All this reg does is say, "We know you aren't worth it. Just tell us what "it" is." And EVEN THAT is being walked back because some CEOs blinked at the SEC????

Sincerely,

Darcie DiBasio
