

To whom it may concern:

Payment for Order Flow is a horrible practice for household investors like me. I'm willing to pay a small fee for a broker to process my order to ensure best execution price rather than have a free trade but get screwed by market makers with advance notice of my order. Why should I be forced to lose money on a trade solely because a market maker decided to use my own trade against me?

End PFOF. It's unnecessary and worthless and works against household investors.

Steven Ranney
Bozeman, MT 59718