In hopes that there is more transparency in the market...

I am in full support of this new regulation. I hope the SEC sees this as a new way to bring trust towards the U.S. markets. The hope is that this will help to promote a more free and fair market by increasing liability on companies who put their greed above all else within the system. Those that seek to exploit the system for personal gain at the expense of others should be punished, and not rewarded. Im glad that this new rule is a step in the right direction.

Sincerely,

Manuel Zul Diaz
