Plaintiff Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC" or "Commission") alleges as follows:

INTRODUCTION

1. The Commission brings this action to restrain and enjoin Defendants from continuing to violate the federal securities laws by offering and selling unregistered securities in the form of interests in accounts receivable. Defendant Hurst Capital Corp. ("HCC") has raised $49 million from over 1300 investors across the nation but has purchased only $625,000 in accounts receivable. Millions of dollars have been misappropriated by Defendants or transferred to corporations they control. For example, the SEC has determined that Defendant James F. Hurst, HCC's president, diverted at least $10 million in investor funds to his personal account and spent this money on a luxury home, on personal investments, and on cars and boats. Unless immediately restrained and enjoined, Defendants will continue to defraud the investing public and to place investor funds at serious risk of diversion and theft.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

6. This Court has jurisdiction over this action pursuant to Sections 20(b), 20(d) and 22(a) of the Securities Act of 1933 ("Securities Act"), 15 U.S.C. §§ 77t(b), 77t(d) and 77v(a), and Sections 21(d), 21(e), and 27 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Exchange Act"), 15 U.S.C. §§ 78u(d), 78u(e) and 78aa.

7. Certain of the acts and transactions constituting violations of the Securities Act and the Exchange Act have occurred within the Southern District of Florida. The principal offices of Defendant HCC is located within the Southern District of Florida. Defendant Hurst resides in the Southern District of Florida. Defendants have engaged in many of the acts and practices complained of herein within the Southern District of Florida.

8. Defendants, directly and indirectly, have made use of the means and instrumentalities of interstate commerce, the means and instruments of transportation and communication in interstate commerce, and the mails, in connection with the acts, practices, and courses of business complained of herein.

THE FRAUDULENT SCHEME

Background

9. HCC purports to be engaged in the business of factoring accounts receivable. HCC claims that it raises capital from investors to purchase accounts receivable from health care providers and commercial companies at a discount. HCC ostensibly pays sellers up to 85% of the value of their accounts receivable due from insurance companies, government agencies.

9. In a document titled "Hurst Capital Corporation -- Medical Receivables Purchase Program," HCC tells investors that the "'investment return' element of this program consists in the margin between the discounted price and the sum collected on each receivable for the account of the client." HCC also represents that their funds will be reinvested four times a year, and that they will receive a guaranteed 20% annual return.

HCC's Offering

10. Since 1993, HCC has been offering and selling securities to the general public in the form of promissory notes and Medical Insurance Receivables Purchase and Agency Agreements ("MIR Agreements"). Through these two investment vehicles, HCC has raised at least $49 million from approximately 1300 investors nationwide, $36.5 million of which was raised during 1997.

11. HCC raised the lion's share of investor funds, i.e., approximately $45.4 million, through the MIR program. HCC guarantees investors annual returns of 20%, which are paid out at 5% per quarter. When investing in the MIR program, investors can elect to receive quarterly interest payments, re-invest the interest earned, or defer compensation and receive interest payments annually. If investors choose to re-invest their earned interest, HCC promises a compounded annual return of 21.55%. Investors are told that their funds are "turned" or re-invested four times a year. HCC also gives investors the option of investing funds in Individual Retirement Accounts ("IRA") through IRA custodians selected by HCC.

13. The MIR program has no minimum investment, and investors provide no financial information to HCC. HCC encourages investors to keep their funds in the MIR program for at least three years, but they are told that they may withdraw their funds upon 60-day written notice to HCC. After investing, investors are not provided with any information or documentation as to which accounts receivable HCC has purchased on their behalf.

12. Investments in HCC's MIR program are offered and sold to the general public through a network of independent sales agents. HCC provides the sales agents with marketing materials and all necessary training. At least one sales agent has used investment sales seminars to solicit funds from investors and another used an advertisement. HCC pays its sales agents a 2% commission on the investor's principal investment and does not require that they have securities licenses.

13. In September 1996, HCC began offering and selling three-year promissory notes to the general public through three private placement offerings. HCC promoted all three offerings and raised approximately $3.6 million from investors.

14. The three private placement offerings were:

(a) a $30 million offering issued by the Hurst Secured Participating Note Fund, L.L.C., dated September 1, 1996, through which HCC raised $100,000;

(b) a $30 million offering issued by the Hurst Receivables Fund, L.L.C., dated November 1, 1996, through which it raised an estimated $1.2 million; and

(c) a $5 million offering issued by the Hurst Account Receivables Fund, L.L.C., dated May 15, 1997, through which it raised approximately $2.3 million.

15. These notes promise investors quarterly returns of 5%, or 20% per year. The minimum investment is $25,000, but HCC has accepted smaller amounts. The notes purport to be collateralized by the medical insurance and/or commercial accounts receivable purchased by HCC.

16. HCC's MIR Agreements and notes are securities as defined by Section 2(a)(1) of the Securities Act, 15 U.S.C. § 77b(1), and Section 3(a)(10) of the Exchange Act, 15 U.S.C. § 78c(10). No registration statement has been filed or is in effect with the Commission in connection with the securities offered by HCC.

HCC's Offering Materials

17. Investors and prospective investors in the MIR program are provided with offering materials, which describe HCC and the investment program. In the materials, HCC represents that it has 10 years of experience purchasing medical receivables and claims to have an "excellent record of performance" dating back to 1985.

18. In the offering materials, HCC also represents to investors their funds will be used to purchase accounts receivable from "individual doctors, clinics and hospitals" that are due from insurers such as Prudential, Aetna and Blue Cross/Blue Shield. Investors are told that HCC will act as their agent to purchase these accounts receivable and that they are "actual purchasers of accounts receivable not investors in securities." A page of "Frequently Asked Questions" assures investors that the risk of an insurance company becoming insolvent and being unable to pay is "virtually non-existent considering that the claims/receivables will be paid by credit worthy insurance companies, whose credit ratings will have been verified."

19. The offering materials explain that investor returns will be generated from the "margin between the discounted purchase price and the sum collected on each receivable." The 5% per quarter returns are described to investors as "slightly conservative and therefore readily attainable." Along with the offering materials, investors receive a MIR Agreement, which they all must sign in order to invest in the program. The MIR Agreement states HCC is acting as the investor's agent to purchase accounts receivable on his or her behalf.

20. HCC also profiles its medical and commercial divisions in a nineteen (19) page glossy brochure recently distributed to potential investors. In the brochure, HCC is introduced to investors as a "creative innovator in state-of-the-art financial technology." HCC also represents to investors that it has earned a "leadership position" in the accounts receivable funding industry and has "pioneered asset-based financing for health care providers." Investors are further told about HCC's "advanced computer software technology" and its team of expert personnel, which include attorneys, accountants, insurance claims analysts, and computer programmers. In these materials, HCC also asserts that it "manages outstanding debt of more than $200 million nationwide."

21. Investors and potential investors in the three-year notes are provided with Limited Offering Memoranda ("Memoranda"), which represent that their funds will be used to acquire accounts receivables from medical and commercial companies that are payable by insurance companies, Medicare, Medicaid and other commercial entities. The Memoranda advise investors that their investments are collateralized by the accounts receivable purchased. In the Memoranda, HCC asserts that it generally purchases accounts receivable of payors "that hold an A.M. Best rating of at least A, or Standard & Poor's, Moody's, or Duff & Phelps rating of at least BBB." HCC further claims that if the minimum rating is not met, it may "enhance performance either by reserves and/or insurance policies."

Role of Hurst

22. Hurst, as president and chief executive officer of HCC, manages the day-to-day affairs of the company. Hurst solicits and negotiates the purchase of accounts receivable from health care providers and commercial entities. He signs the agreements for purchase and sale of receivables on behalf of HCC. He also has signature authority over all of HCC's bank accounts.

23. In addition, the brochure given to potential investors includes a letter from Hurst, as president and chief executive officer of HCC, touting the company's twelve years of experience as a "creative innovator in state-of-the-art financial technology," and describing HCC's "unique services of accounts receivable funding, collections, and accounts management to an industry with limitless potential."

Role of Clifton

24. Clifton is vice-president of HCC. Clifton frequently communicates with investors and potential investors verbally and in writing. He has made direct offers and sales of the MIR Agreements to investors and potential investors. He also signs most of the investor correspondence, including letters to investors acknowledging receipt of their funds and thanking them for their investments. Many of the MIR Agreements issued to investors are signed by Clifton on behalf of HCC.

Material Misrepresentations and Omissions

Purchase of Accounts Receivable

25. HCC's representations to investors that it is purchasing medical insurance or commercial accounts receivable on their behalf are false. Of the $49 million in investor funds raised by HCC, HCC own records reflect that it has purchased only approximately $625,000 in accounts receivable from five businesses. Only one of these five was a health care provider, and it is now defunct.

Hurst's Misappropriation of Investor Funds

26. Hurst has taken more than $10 million in investor funds for his own use. For example, Hurst used over $1.3 million in investor funds to purchase and renovate a mansion for himself in West Palm Beach, Florida. He has also been using investor funds to pay his household and living expenses. In addition, Hurst deposited $4 million in investor funds into a personal investment account. He has also purchased over $2 million in annuities and other investments, as well as over $600,000 in boats and automobiles, all with monies from investors.

Ownership of Accounts Receivable

27. HCC is also misrepresenting to investors that they are the actual owners of the accounts receivable HCC purchases. Contrary to what the company tells investors, the purchase agreements that HCC enters into with health care providers or commercial entities show that HCC, and not any investor or group of investors, is the purchaser of the accounts receivable. In fact, none of HCC's purchase agreements reflect that the company is purchasing accounts receivable on behalf of investors.

28. Nor do investors hold any security interests in the receivables purchased by HCC. The one and only Uniform Commercial Code filing made by HCC in connection with its accounts receivable purchases reflects that HCC, and not any investor or group of investors, has a secured interest in the receivables. In addition, the investors receive no documentation or information from HCC as to which accounts receivable HCC has purportedly purchased on their behalf.

Evidence of a Ponzi Scheme

29. HCC is engaged in a Ponzi scheme. Bank records indicate that, as recently as December 1997, HCC is using new investor money to pay interest to prior investors. The bank records further reflect that the four named relief defendants, three controlled by Hurst and one controlled by Clifton, have received over $13.5 million in investor funds.
