I spoke to David Bergers in the Boston office about Harry Markopolus (the informant). They've worked with him before, as Markopolus keeps telling me, and find him to be generally reliable. Their past experience with him has been that Markopolus has very good sources, but he can be credulous and immediately believes what his sources tell him, even when they have biases. Some of his tips have panned out and have been very good cases, others have turned out to be nothing.
